Competition expands in the fixed sector: Ministry of Communications grants VOB license to Bezeq International

Minister Attias: "More companies in this sector mean that the customer can enjoy diversity of choices and advanced services, as well as price reduction"

The Minister of Communications has today granted a VOB service operation license to B.I.P. Communication Solutions, owned by Bezeq International.

Granting the license was made possible in light of the VOB policy document, which states, among other things, that Bezeq International can receive a VOB license once Bezeq's share of the domestic telephony market gets below 85%.

The license will enable the company to deliver telephony services over broadband (VOB) to private customers. However, once Bezeq's market share of the business sector of domestic telephony market goes below 85%, Bezeq International can also provide this service to business clients.

Furthermore, the company will be able to offer packages that combine all the different services it provides.
